

The smash-hit stage adaptation of the classic Australian coming-of-age mystery

In the sizzling summer of 1965, bookish 14 year-old Charlie Bucktin lives in a tiny, insignificant bush town where nothing happens.

Nothing, that is, until the town's very own Huckleberry Finn – the light-fingered and dark-skinned Jasper Jones (Shaka Cook) – stumbles upon a gruesome crime out by the dam. Who else would he call on for help but the sharpest kid around?

Recommendations

Jasper Jones is a contemporary Australian, coming-of-age classic featuring teenage heroes. Employing strong themes of place and time, the work fits into the genre of Australian Gothic, where the rural landscape of Corrigan, Western Australia, sets the scene for Jasper's world. This play explores family and family history, race and adolescence.
